Girl Resting

George Currier

Artist Description Bruce Currie (1911 – 2011 USA) Born in Sac City, Iowa, Bruce Currie was a figure and still-life painter in modernist styles. He was long-time active in New York state, where he lived in Woodstock with his artist wife, Ethel Magafan, and daughter Jennie. They plus extended family were regarded as part of the "old guard" of the Colony. Ethel's twin sister, Jenne, and Jenne's, husband, Eduardo Chavez, also lived there and both were artists. Years later, the family members living near each other and working together were described by Ray Steiner from childhood memories as being a "clan---a special group of people who shared not only a love of art, but also a love of life and nature." In Academy annual exhibitions his paintings won the Thomas B. Clarke Prize, 1966, and an Altman Prize, 1979. Among his other honors were awards from the Woodstock Foundation; the Butler Institute of American Art, Youngstown, Ohio; Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana; Audubon Artists; and the National Society of Painters in Casein and Acrylic.
